NEW CONTROLS PUT ON SCARED JAPAN

Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

Strawberries, always a favorite fruit and very much in demand at top prices, are unusually scarce in Fayette County this year, due to two or three reasons, and one dealer who usually buys heavily of Fayette County berries told me today that he had not purchased a single quart of berries in the county so far.

The crop shortage is due first of all to the fact that few people are growing strawberries, and also to the fact that the late freezing temperature killed a great many of the berries in the blossom.

The labor shortage has been one factor in the shortage of berries, and the drought last year caused heavy dry-weather kill of the vines.

Some exceptionally choice berries have been reaching here from Ross and other adjacent counties where more berries are grown, but the crop generally in this part of Ohio is a light one.

When I speak of strawberries I naturally think of the large number of persons who say they can not eat the delicious fruit because the berries cause "bold hives." I have found that some of this trouble has been caused by eating strawberries and tomatoes at the same time and health authorities warn against eating tomatoes with strawberries or any other fruit.

Getting back to the strawberry offering in the local markets, present indications are that many of you folks will seek them in vain because of the crop shortage.

A Fayette County neighbor who collects old theater programs, admission tickets and the like has dug up an 1885 dinner menu from a city hotel. Fish, three kinds of meat, besides turkey and cold cuts, were listed along with plenty of vegetables, salads and a dozen desserts. All for one dollar. Perhaps those were the good old days, after all.

MILITARY TRAINING LAW TIME IS NOW

MIT President Urges Passage
Of Law

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—Action now on a program for compulsory postwar military training was proposed today by Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Compton told the House committee on postwar military policy: "Right now we would be well advised to establish our reasonable military program, and to let the world know that we mean business when we talk of preserving peace, and that we are ready to adopt strong measures to insure our safety against attack."

"It seems to me," he added, "that out of a program of universal military training aimed primarily at national security would come secondarily as a by-product an exceedingly valuable and wholesome development of attitude on the part of group after group of oncoming young citizens."

ARGENTINA THREAT FOR CORRESPONDENT

NEW YORK, June 8.—(P)—The New York Times published today a dispatch from its Buenos Aires correspondent, Arnaldo Cortesi, saying he was warned Tuesday night by the Argentine minister of the interior, Admiral Alberto Teissiere, "not to be surprised at anything that may happen to you."

The Argentine official was reported incensed by Cortesi's dispatch of a week ago in which the correspondent said the Farrell-Perone government had "deprived the Argentine people of what small remains of freedom they still possessed."

Cortesi's delayed dispatch, filed Wednesday, said Teissiere charged him with "malicious efforts to create a difficult situation" for Argentina, and recounted: "The government," he said, "will not allow newspaper men to embarrass Argentina's foreign policy."

Gen. Bradley Named New Administrator Of Veterans' Affairs

Brig. Gen. Hines Resigns To Take Another Post—Kentuckian
Appointed Undersecretary of Agriculture and New Yorker as NLB Member as Truman Reshuffles
Nation's Officialdom

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—President Truman called today on a four-star general of World War II—Omar N. Bradley—to look after the affairs of veterans of all wars.

He accented once more his inclination to pick westerners for key jobs in his administration. General Bradley, 52-year-old commander of the Mammoth 12th Army Group in Europe, is from Moberly, Mo.

He will succeed Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, retired, who is resigning to take an undisclosed post offered him by the President. Hines has been head of the Veterans Administration since 1923, and Mr. Truman said he believed it was time the veterans had someone who served in the current war running their affairs.

Other presidential appointments made public yesterday at the Chief Executive's news conference included: John B. Hutson of Kentucky, to be undersecretary of agriculture, and W. Stuart Symington of St. Louis, to be chairman of the Surplus Property Board.

Hutson, now an assistant to War Mobilizer Fred M. Vinson, was named to succeed Grover B. Hill of Texas, who resigned. Symington, president of the Emerson Electric Company, will succeed former senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, who asked to step out July 15.

Another appointment announced yesterday was that of Paul M. Herzog of New York City, to be a member of the National Labor Relations Board to succeed H. A. Millis, resigned. Herzog, former chairman of the New York State Labor Relations Board, has been doing labor relations work for the Navy as a reserve lieutenant.

The President reiterated a previous assertion that the Veterans (Please Turn to Page Two)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., June 8.—(P)—Walter Winchell said today his daughter, Walda, had decided to seek an annulment of her three-day-old marriage to William Lawless, 29, an art student.

The columnist quoted her as telling him in a telephone call from New York City: "We had a long talk and agreed we had made a big mistake."

Winchell said Walda, 18, added that she and Lawless had not lived together since their marriage.

OHIO PLANT RECONVERTS FOR WASHING MACHINES

SANDUSKY, O., June 8.—(P)—The Apex Electrical Manufacturing Co. will begin production of an automatic washing machine as soon as reconversion is completed, President C. G. Frantz said. Ironers and dryers will be placed in production after washing machines have been produced, he said.

Wac and Two Airmen Located in Shangri-La

By RALPH MORTON
HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea, June 5.—(Delayed)—(P)—A wartime air tragedy has unlocked in dramatic fashion the mysterious "hidden valley of Shangri-La."

Paratroopers—the first men from the outside world to invade the isolated home of six-foot, spear-wielding tribesmen—are building a glider field in the valley, 150 miles southwest of Hollandia, to rescue a 30-year-old WAC and two army airmen.

RUSSIANS BOW TO U. S. ON VETO VETO FORMULA

Another Obstacle in Path
Of Security League Is
Hurdled at Frisco

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
SAN FRANCISCO, June 8.—(P)—Small nation acceptance of a Big-Five veto voting formula for a world security council today appeared certain. A successful end of the United Nations conference is in sight.

Russia's dramatic acceptance of a statement that the big-power veto could not be used to block discussion of any case presented to the council broke a week-old deadlock late yesterday.

Ten days to two weeks more remain to get the United Nations Charter in final shape for signing, but no major issues are on the horizon.

It took the efforts of Premier Stalin, Harry Hopkins, who was then in Moscow, and Secretary of State Stettinius, who acted with President Truman's approval, to end the deadlock. Hopkins, on instructions from Stettinius, asked Stalin to reconsider Soviet insistence that any of the big five could veto even discussion of an international dispute. The other four major powers did not want a single veto vote to block round-table talk.

Stalin reversed the Soviet position, acting, according to his spokesmen, in the interest of unanimity and to speed the conference to success.

STAY AT HOME NOW PRESIDENT APPEALS

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—A presidential appeal to Americans to "stay at home" served today to highlight the immense redeployment task in this country.

President Truman said yesterday he would call for government control of travel if necessary. But he added he hoped such action would not be necessary and that he did not anticipate it.

In a statement at his news conference, the Chief Executive left no doubt that all present restrictions would not be relaxed.

WANT DETENTION ROOMS AT WARREN COUNTY HOME

LEBANON, O., June 8.—(P)—Warren County and Juvenile Court officials meet today to revise plans for construction of juvenile detention rooms and a caretaker's dwelling at the county home.

H. D. Bailey, president of the board of county commissioners, said the War Production Board will not approve present plans for the dwelling, and he added that officials of the state welfare department have told him plans for the detention rooms are not satisfactory.

Ohioans Getting Share Of Nation's Meat Supply

CLEVELAND, June 8.—(P)—It may not be much consolation, but the Office of Price Administration says Ohioans are getting their share of the nation's meat supply.

But Cleveland's Mayor Thomas A. Burke has asked the local food and drug administration office to check an OPA survey which showed residents of the nation's sixth city were receiving more than their portion.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche reported yesterday that OPA Regional Administrator Birkett L. Williams assured him Ohio was being issued a fair share of the available meat. The OPA chief, Lausche added, promised more meat to one or two areas where possible deficiencies were disclosed in recent surveys.

Acting District OPA Director W. J. Kennedy announced a survey in Cleveland disclosed residents were receiving two and a quarter pounds of rationed meat a week per person.

At this ratio, he declared, Greater Cleveland eats 884,679 pounds more than the national average each week.

Matrimonial Intrigue Enters Murder Mystery

BIG THREE MEETING
IN 40 DAYS, IS TIP

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—President Truman expects to meet with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill within the next 40 days to discuss world affairs. Announcing this at his news conference yesterday, Mr. Truman rejected France's bid for a Big Five meeting to explore the knotty Middle Eastern problem.

He stated his belief that the Levantine question can be worked out at a lower level.

NEW YORK, June 8.—(P)—Funeral services for Albert E. Langford, 63, slain textile executive, were expected to be held today as police continued to delve into the background of his wealthy 70-year-old, cafe society widow, Marion.

Investigations in the three-day old killing still centered about the 500 names contained in four memorandum books. Mrs. Langford's custom of providing financial assistance to aspiring young artists also held the attention of police, who admitted they were without motive for the slaying.

Asked by reporters yesterday whether she intended to attend her husband's burial, Mrs. Langford said: "Oh, good God, no."

A police official disclosed Mrs.

Congressmen Hesitant About Boosting Own Pay

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—Members of Congress met with cool comment and calculating glances today President Truman's virtual invitation to hike their salaries as much as $15,000 a year. Mr. Truman held out no immediate prospect of wage boosts for other Americans. But he said a study will be made.

As for more congressional pay, typical reaction included the comment of Senate President McKeeler (D-Tenn.) that "I'll have to think it over; you know I've always been against raising our own salaries." And that of Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the House appropriations committee, who said he viewed the idea as inadvisable "now."

Mr. Truman at his news conference yesterday told reporters: 1. That he would not veto the legislative appropriation bill carrying a new expense allowance of $2,500 for each House member.

2. That he thought, however, the law-makers ought to come out for a straight-out salary increase to $15,000 or $25,000 and that he would sign such a bill. Congress pay now is $10,000. (Please Turn to Page Two)

YOUNG MAN'S BODY FOUND IN CAR PARKED IN LANE

MASSILLON, O., June 8.—(P)—The Stark County sheriff's office today was investigating the death of a young man whose body, found lying near an automobile in a lane three miles south of here. A 22-caliber rifle was beside the body. A driver's license in the young man's pocket bore the name of Robert Murray, route 1, Navarre, deputy sheriffs said.

France was said by an authoritative informant to be pressing for inclusion in her zone of Cologne, which now is in the British area, and Frankfurt, which is in the American. Moreover, the French would like the Saar Basin, which originally was included in the American zone.

LIQUIDATION ASKED OF FOUR WAR GROUPS

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—House Republicans in a surprise move today sought abolition of four federal war time agencies. Party leaders disclosed that when the $769,765,000 War Agencies Appropriations bill comes before the chamber this afternoon they will propose liquidation of: The Offices of War Information, Economic Stabilization, Inter-American Affairs and the War Relocation Authority.

SPEED DASH HALTED

DAYTON, O., June 8.—(P)—Two P-47N fighter planes, enroute from Los Angeles to Mitchell Field, N. Y., in an attempt to set a new coast to coast speed record, were forced down at Wright Field yesterday by bad weather.

Langford had given $50,000 during four years to Reed Lawton, manager of a touring opera company.

Lawton, who came here voluntarily from Chicago to undergo police questioning, pictured the marriage of the Langfords in September, 1942 as the climax of a plot engineered by an Austrian baroness to wed Langford to a woman of wealth.

Lawton said he learned of the purported scheme when the baroness, who he added later was deported, came to him and proposed that Langford had reneged on a promise to pay $25,000 for her services in promoting the match.

He related he later told Mrs. Langford the story and said she "laughed and said it was just an attempt to shake her down for some cash."

JOBLESS PAY HIKE FACES NEW BATTLE

COLUMBUS, June 8.—(P)—The Senate-approved Reiners Bill increasing unemployed compensation benefits from $16 weekly for 18 weeks to $21 for 22 weeks headed today into a renewed battle for further liberalization in the House of Representatives.

Thirty-one senators unanimously approved the measure yesterday in a vote called unexpectedly after more than 400 representatives of union locals throughout the state packed the chamber and demonstrated their displeasure over slowness of legislators to act.

The 20 Republicans solidly opposed all attempts by Democrats to increase benefits to $25 for 26 weeks, boost minimum payments from $5 to $8, shorten the present waiting period from two weeks to one, and provide other advantages sought by organized labor in recent committee hearings.

Cars With Glass Fronts Coming After War--1947

By LARRY SMITH
TOLEDO, June 8.—(P)—The home and car owner will enjoy greater comfort, safety and visibility when glass comes home from war.

This preview of what postwar America may expect from the glass industry was furnished yesterday on a tour of Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. plants. "The major contribution to the automotive industry is our success in making curved glass which gives a maximum of clarity and greater optical advantage," company president John D. Biggers reported.

SUICIDAL FIGHT CONTINUING ON BLOODY OKINAWA

Yanks Blast 'Sacred Isles'

Gains Made in China

By LEONARD MILLIMAN

By the Associated Press
Invasion-frightened Japan was harried today by U. S. carrier planes, mine-laying Superforts and tightening government controls to be carried out "by force if necessary."

All this was reported by Tokyo radio which warned American air raids on the "sacred isles" would reach a new peak with the imminent fall of Okinawa.

Drastic new government regulations, which semi-official sources indicated may lead to rule of Japan by Imperial decree, empowered authorities to seize all excess profits and established tighter control over war industry, workers and materials "to cope with the new situation."

Approximately 200 carrier planes strafed and bombed suicide air bases on southern Japan, Tokyo reported, in quick follow-up of raids from Okinawa Wednesday and Thursday.

Smoke billowed five miles above Superfort-blasted Kobe as U. S. communiques announced air strikes sank 15 more Japanese ships from Japan to Borneo.

Okinawa Split

Surviving Japanese on Okinawa were split into two disconnected but strongly entrenched units by a swift half mile drive to the west coast by the First Marine Division. Even Tokyo admitted the battle was hopeless and the fall of Okinawa "will have a great effect on the entire war."

Chinese extended their grasp on south China's Indo-China corridor which a Chungking army spokesman said had isolated about 200,000 Japanese in Burma, Thailand, Indo-China and Malaya.

A sudden seven mile lunge northward in the Philippines carried the U. S. 37th Division into Bayombong, Japanese supply base in Luzon Island's Cagayan Valley. The first Nipponese flame-throwing tanks encountered in the southwest Pacific were (Continued From Page Two)

Watson was military aide to Mr. Roosevelt during most of his 12 years in office. In later years he served as top White House secretary. He died en route home from the Yalta conference.

PATTON IS READY TO FIGHT JAPANESE

BOSTON, June 8.—(P)—General George S. Patton, Jr., hoping he was on his way to "fight the Japanese," flew from the Bedford Airport for Los Angeles today—taking off before most of the million people who gave him a hero's welcome yesterday had left their homes for their work.

The dynamic, gun-toting chief of the invincible "Third Army" stirred by the welcome of his adopted state upon his first return to the United States from the war in Europe, told newsmen, "I sincerely hope I fight the Japanese." The general was accompanied by Mrs. Patton.

FIRE FIGHTING IS MADE EASIER BY NEW NOZZLES

As result of a series of purchases made under the direction of Fire Chief George Hall, during the past few years, the fire department in Washington C. H. is probably one of the best equipped in Ohio when it comes to special nozzles and contrivances to aid in fire fighting.

Chief Hall wants some additional equipment to further augment the special equipment already installed for protection of the firemen and for saving property with the least possible damage, but is very much pleased with equipment already installed.

The latest addition to the equipment consists of two new nozzles that will throw a straight stream of water, or a dense fog separately or together. These are standard equipment of the U. S. Navy and U. S. Army fire fighting forces, it seems, and are regarded as among the most valuable special nozzles in existence.

The nozzles reached the department and were attached to the hose early this week, and were given their first try-out Wednesday night during the blaze at the former Reichert pop plant in this city.

By the aid of the nozzles, using the fog spray and the straight stream at the same time, the firemen were able to literally walk into the fire and smoke and smother it as they went. It was largely due to these nozzles that the fire was brought under control so quickly.

The fog drives back and smothers the smoke and flames and makes close-up fighting possible where all other methods fail, and the firemen were highly satisfied with results obtained in the first test of the combination nozzles.

Some of the special equipment consists of long nozzles that will literally fight fire around the corner, in basements, attics, between weatherboarding and plastering, and just about anywhere that fire can occur.

One of the big needs in the fire department, however, is at least one new pump to take the place of the aged pumps which now form the main equipment.

MATRIMONIAL INTRIQUE ENTERS MURDER MYSTERY AS FUNERAL IS HELD

While Lawton's name was the only one in the memorandum books made public, police said they also found the name of a popular, New York night club figure recurring frequently and that entries showed he received "at least $15,000."

Langford was shot to death Monday night in the foyer of his hotel apartment by one of two men who had asked to speak to Mrs. Langford, police said.

It was disclosed that Mrs. Langford had concealed from her 93-year-old utilities executive father the fact that she married Langford. The couple managed to keep the secret even though her father, Joseph Mayer, lived on the twelfth floor of the hotel Marguery while the Langfords lived on the seventh.

Mayer had been paying his daughter about $50,000 a year and was said to be afraid someone would marry her for her money.

Police said they had questioned a chauffeur formerly employed by Mrs. Langford who disclosed that he had driven Lawton and Mrs. Langford to Canada in 1943 and that he had taken Mrs. Langford and other men on still other extended trips.

Mrs. Langford explained that the Canadian trip was merely a singing tour and that she went along as a patron of Lawton, the artist.

Later today the district attorney's office said Mrs. Marion Langford, believed she had spent about $100,000 to further Lawton's career. The night-clubbing widow told the district attorney she spent a great part of the money in night clubs in which Lawton sang.

Lawton told investigators he repaid most of the money given him by Mrs. Langford. He said he received a percentage of the gross business done by clubs with which he was associated.

NEW CONTROLS CLAMPED ON SCARED JAPAN BUT OKINAWA FIGHT RAGES knocked out.

In Tokyo the government controlled Domei news agency reported a growing demand that the parliament be by-passed and that Adm. Kantaro Suzuki's cabinet rule by Imperial decree to meet war-brought emergencies.

An extraordinary five hour cabinet session yesterday was followed by a call from the nation's totalitarian party for immediate increase in Nippon's fighting strength.

Marines Near Coast

On Okinawa the First Marine Division slashing 900 yards to the west, came within 300 yards of the coast below Naha airfield. Above this point Sixth Division Marines were driving into the northern pocket over rough ground in the face of heavy fire.

The 96th Infantry Division, led by tanks, and the 7th Army Division on the east, hammered at the other group of survivors driven into the southern coffin corner of Okinawa.

A Tokyo broadcast claimed 60,000 Americans have been killed and 566 U. S. vessels sunk in the campaign. American figures list 26,677 ground casualties, 25 vessels sunk and 58 damaged.

Two B-29s were lost in the heavily escorted attack yesterday on Osaka and its important arsenal.

The Fifth Bomber Command of the Far East Air Forces destroyed or damaged 1,584 Japanese planes and 518,750 tons of shipping during 1944 at a cost of 358 planes, the War Department said today.

Fanatical Resistance

Although the enemy positions were hopeless—Tokyo radio itself said so in effect—the Nipponese could hold out several days and make the battle for Okinawa even costlier than it has been.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported 66,324 Japanese had been killed on Okinawa from the April 1 invasion through June 6. This was an increase of 4,805 in the past week.

Tokyo radio said today "the Okinawa fighting was never intended to decide the fate of our nation" after quoting newspaper concessions that the battle was virtually lost. Tokyo continued:

"No one can deny that the fighting on Okinawa will have a great effect on the entire war."

Tokyo blamed much of its troubles on its "very difficult supply situation."

The broadcast did not reconcile this claim with its admission that U. S. forces got ample supplies while the Japanese got virtually none, nor the fact that American carrier pilots have raided Japanese home islands whenever Nimitz thought advisable.

Domei reported later that Kamikaze pilots resumed their attacks yesterday and claimed two American ships were sunk. It said the attacks were continuing.

Navy planes sank two small cargo ships off Kyushu.

NAHA, Okinawa, June 8.—(AP)—Japanese military forces in Okinawa were heavy users of narcotics and may have thus bolstered their hopeless but fanatical defense of the island, two Navy doctors said today.

NO LIBERTY SHIPS TO BE BUILT NOW

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., June 8.—(AP)—The nation's Liberty ship building program came to an end in a shower of champagne today as two of the 10,500-ton vessels which have carried supplies to distant battle fronts were christened at the New England Shipbuilding Corp. plant.

They brought to 2,661 the number of 441-foot Liberty ships built by the U. S. Maritime Commission. The first of the craft slid into the water September 27, 1941.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE—

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

Russia, under direct appeal, has come through again with evidence that she is determined to help establish a world security organization of some value.

It was always inconceivable that the point at issue—Russia's demand for the right to prevent any given discussion from coming before the council—should defeat the aims of the conference. Even the reasons for the demand were a mystery, like so many other Russian actions which have had the San Francisco delegates shaking their heads, not even pretending to understand. It has seemed almost as though Stalin was creating situations through which he could later indicate willingness to co-operate.

The ultimate, practical result is not so important. The Big Five still retains the individual right to veto real action in the case of threatened war. True, to have prevented the council from becoming a real forum might have permitted developments, in the dark, of situations which would befuddle world opinion when they suddenly burst into view.

But the big thing is that Stalin has instructed his delegation to give in. There is no evidence of a trade. The Russians are told to show a conciliatory attitude in the interests of the success of the conference.

That is the one thing needed. Once every worry over methods, every nationalistic desire, is subordinated to the one necessity of establishing security, then the goal will be in sight.

Russia is doing some things unilaterally, apparently with the main view of establishing her own security, which is alien to our way of thinking. It seems obvious that she does not yet trust the western powers.

In this—if she can be accepted as free from aggressive motives, of which there is no evidence—she has a right to expect some sympathy, at least from America. It was only yesterday that suspicion of other powers was a motivating force here. Also, Russia can easily remember when France, Britain and the United States, of the present Big Five, sent armies to Siberia and (although it must be said that Japan was by far the worst) either directly or indirectly supported some of the worst outbursts of record in their opposition to the founders of the present regime.

And it was only four years ago that Winston Churchill told the Russians, in effect, that Britain didn't like them, but of course would be glad to have them kill Germans. That Britain ultimately loaned them tremendous help, and that the United States probably provided the balance of power, has done much to offset these things. But Russia knows she was badly needed, that she came through, and is as jealous of her prerogative as any new power.

Every report from Germany indicates that on the lower level of contact between armies the Russian soldier and the American soldier appreciate each other, that as men to men there are no barriers between them. It is obvious, too, that the Russian army is thankful for American military aid to a degree which is everything that could be desired.

The Russian soldier has seen some new horizons in western Europe, and like his American counterpart, is going to play an important role in the future of his country.

It may well turn out that these things will prove more lasting important than the hesitations and fearful erection of defenses of a country which is just emerging into a new place in world affairs. At least there are new grounds for hope.

PLANS CHANGED FOR HANDLING INSURED MAIL

Two New Receipt Forms To Be in General Use After July 1

Postmaster W. E. Passmore is calling public attention to new arrangements for handling insured mail which go into effect July 1.

As a result of reduced insured fees that are currently in effect, a substantial decrease in revenue from insured mail was experienced, and for this reason it became necessary to simplify the method of handling all insured parcels.

The new system will work as follows: Two new receipt forms have been provided for use on and after July first. One is to be used in connection with parcels on which the minimum fee of three cents is paid, and the other when higher fees are paid.

The receipt which a patron will receive for the minimum fee insured parcel will be more or less a blank. The sender should immediately fill in the blank spaces and retain the receipt until the parcel has been satisfactorily accounted for. This is especially important because the Post Office will keep no record of minimum fee insured parcels and a detailed record will not be kept when a higher fee is paid. Therefore, claims for alleged loss of such parcels will not be accepted if the sender's receipt cannot be submitted.

Patrons receiving parcels, on which the minimum insured fee has been paid, with all or a portion of its contents missing or damaged, should retain that portion of the wrapper or container bearing the words, "INSURED—Minimum Fee" and other particulars such as: postmark of mailing office and names and addresses of sender and addressee. The wrapper or container may be submitted for consideration as evidence of insurance if the sender's receipt is not available.

Patrons should also be careful in preparing parcels for mailing as indemnity for damage to fragile matter and spoiling of perishable matter may be difficult to collect if parcels are not properly endorsed: "FRAGILE" or "GLASS" or "BREAKABLE" or "PERISHABLE" as the case may be. If the accepting postal employee is advised that contents of a parcel is: fragile or perishable, the sender should see that the receipt handed to him is endorsed accordingly by the postal employee. All parcels should plainly show the names and addresses, addresses of the sender and the addressee.

Most of the above information is in connection with parcels on which the minimum insurance fee is paid. However, the advice given as to the proper manner of preparing parcels for mailing, of completing and retaining receipts and wrappers or containers should be followed on all insured parcels because post office records, even when higher insured fees are paid, will not be as complete on and after July first, as they are at present.

JUST A FRIENDLY CHAT

Please read Heb. 5:8-10. Do you know this Author of eternal salvation? Do you know Him as your personal Savior? To know Him as such, and as a High Priest after the order of Melchisedec, you automatically become interested in the blessings which He bestows.

Was there ever a greater gift, a greater blessing, one that offers as much joy as "eternal salvation"? As we all know the Lord Jesus has the power to transform us; instead of being godless, we are then on good terms with our Heavenly Father. Through His Atoning blood we know that the Lord Jesus can save us from the penalty of sin, because He being a Holy, sinless One, became Savior and High Priest to the unholy and sinful (Heb. 7:25-26). Christ in love gave Himself once to effect our eternal salvation and to claim us forever as the sons of God. Our claim to these blessings is a once-for-all c-o-n-f-e-s-s-i-o-n-g faith in the crucified One. We would have none of these blessings if this Author of eternal salvation had not worked them out for us upon the cross; you remember that He said, "It is finished."

Food and Shortages

We hear quite a lot of people complaining and worrying about food, sugar and other shortages right here in Fayette County but this is nothing compared to the talk heard in some of the congested cities.

There is promise of some relief toward fall this year but in spite of surveys and investigations much of the cause of trouble has not been definitely settled upon.

We don't know what the new secretary of agriculture will be able to accomplish but speaking of the recently appointed Mr. Anderson, one of his predecessors in the new double-barreled job of agriculture secretary and war food administrator made a rather puzzling statement upon leaving office.

Marvin Jones, retiring WFA head, said that since the European fighting has ended, there is no need for a separate war food agency in a one-front war. He doesn't say why.

We have recently been promised that American food stocks will hit a wartime low in August, with few reserves in sight for winter. And it's apparent to anyone who eats that the food shortage is getting worse, not better.

We sincerely believe that the whole problem of food production and distribution should be under one central control, and that the move to put it there is long overdue. But we can't see that a one-front war was needed as an excuse, or that it has a great deal to do with the overall difficulty.

Views About Syria

People talking on a Sunday evening about Syria and the Lebanon expressed three oddly different views. One said, since arguments of various degrees of peace and war had been going on between French and Arabs for something like 400 years, and Arabs have always loved a scrap, it looked as if maybe they just wanted one more good brawl before a United Nations organization came in to enforce peace and boredom for the rest of their lives.

Another blamed the ruckus on the stiffness of De Gaulle. With all his merits he is no diplomat. A little smoothness and tact might have saved 400 lives and possible serious ill-feeling between English and French.

The third said both sounded possible. He wished he could believe they accounted for all. He couldn't help feeling this might be a manufactured incident, similar to that, seeming small and far away, at Sarajevo in 1914, which started the first World War. The incident, he feared, might spread through the Arab League, thence start a Pan-Islamic movement throughout the world. A "holy war" of this type, in which Moslems fought non-Moslems, would be more devastating to civilization than any-

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — Is President Truman's "honeymoon with Congress" about over?

That is the question political observers here are asking today. The answers will hardly lead you to any definite conclusions. Perhaps there is a shade of evidence on the side that it is over. The reason: simply that the President, in his few weeks in office, is showing himself a little too politically astute to suit the Republicans.

The G. O. P. has been banking heavily on the fact that 1948 would be its year to take over the government. The reasons are too numerous even to list, but they were counting on (1) the end of the war on all fronts; (2) resentment against Franklin D. Roosevelt's long tenure of office; (3) gains made by Republicans in state administrations and the House and Senate in the last 10 years; (4) the increasing antagonism toward bureaucracies; and (5) the bitterness against some executives Roosevelt had kept long in office.

When Roosevelt's sudden death elevated Harry S. Truman to the presidency, they saw no reason to change their views. As a matter of fact, it's no secret here that many Roosevelt opponents felt a little sorry for Truman and were inclined to step forward immediately to help him carry the tremendous load that had so unexpectedly been heaped upon him.

To the consternation of some of these anti-Republican party elements, President Truman has demonstrated a remarkable ability to grab the political ball and head for the goal-line. What's more, he not only has most of his own team running interference for him, but he has confused the opposition by feints in their direction.

In other words, he has not only done much to bring the conservative and radical Democrats into close harmony, but he has confounded the Republicans by doing several important things they criticized Roosevelt for not doing.

His demand for sweeping powers to reorganize the post-war government along vertical authority lines and get rid of most of the "dangling bureaucracies" has the Republicans on the spot. The President has declared that he wants to do just what they have complained so long that Roosevelt wouldn't do.

He has had former President Hoover to the White House, across a threshold the latter hadn't crossed since he walked out in March of 1933. It appears pretty certain now that either as adviser or in an official capacity, the talents and experience of Mr. Hoover as a relief executive of stricken nations will be utilized.

He has invited both presidential nominees Alf M. Landon and Thomas E. Dewey to come to the White House; two more opponents and titular leaders of the G. O. P. that Roosevelt left out of his scheme of things.

These things, plus other moves within the Democratic party and out, have some Republicans already urging that they start backing up fast.

As a result, the administration backed reciprocal trade treaty vote in the House the other day split almost entirely along party lines and was headed for worse trouble in the Senate.

The Office of Price Administration extension, given a generous pat by President Truman, already is slated for heavy opposition. There are other straws in the wind.

When 1948 comes, the G. O. P. wants to be sure that no political Red Grange is totting the Democratic pigskin. Four quadrennials of that sort of thing is enough, they say; but political sideliners are positive that not since the middle 1930s have the Democrats been more solid and the minority Republicans more perturbed.

All agreed finally in the hope that this example of what could happen to a confused and war-weary world might prove fortunate, if it roused all the nations to the need of working together from now on.

The Family Orator

That commencement orator of high school or college graduating class, bears new promise these days. The gift of facing audiences, of speaking clearly and with moving appeal, has a value not formerly known.

Radio has made a new asset of public speaking. The professional ranks of broadcasters, announcers and actors on the air are bidding for that speaking talent which once was thought a mere incident of school days, to be forgotten in the serious business of life.

The American composer and radio performer, Deems Taylor, recently was paid $1,500 to travel from New York to a mid-western city for one evening's performance as an announcer on a national hookup program. It was worth it to the sponsoring company, because the few but gifted words Taylor spoke before each number made the whole program a great success.

Let no high school orator think he can jump into the Taylor class in two or three years. Deems Taylor has put a lifetime of the hardest possible intellectual concentration, hard work and learning-by-experience into the pot which holds his present powers. These were added to a talent for music and a sincerity about it which were his basic assets. The road to such success is long and hard.

But the family class orator may well be viewed with modern and appraising eyes. Radio does offer him a future within grasp of his talent.

Diet and Health

Nutrition Is Poor During An Illness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE USE of a well-balanced diet not only is important during the treatment of illness, but also during the recovery or convalescent period. As soon as a person is injured or suffers from disease, poor nutrition almost always starts at once.

According to Doctors John P. Peters of Yale University and Robert Elman of Washington University, this malnutrition comes as a result of two things; first, the direct effect of the disease or injury in damaging tissues, and second, a lessened food intake, because during these times persons just do not have a good appetite or are unable to eat.

Wasting of Tissues

Unless the body is properly supplied with all of the necessary food parts, there is wasting of the tissues. Hence, food and fluid must be given in proper quantities and proportions, starting with the very onset of the illness. If this is done there will be no need for treating severe and prolonged malnutrition during the convalescent time.

So often it is forgotten that no matter how much food is offered to a patient, it will have no value unless it is eaten, and this failure to eat may arise from physical weakness or exhaustion, or because even the motions of eating are painful.

It is often helpful to take advantage of the sense of thirst, because a thirsty person will take fluids, and both calories and proteins may be given in the form of fluids.

VETERANS' GUIDE

BY MAJOR THOMAS M. NIAL

WASHINGTON — For a long time, men in the service have understood that they had the right to their old job. All they had to do was to get out of the service. But already there are between a million and a half and two million veterans, with more coming out every month. What are they likely to run into? They are likely to find that the right to the old job, which the Selective Service Act was supposed to have made absolute, isn't exactly the same as it sounded while in the service.

To get at what I mean, I'll build a simplified story around the owner of a large woodworking establishment. We'll call him Bill Manning. Bill made toys for years before the war. In 1940, his plant took on a young fellow named Joe Welsh. Bill didn't know him at the time. In fact it was getting so he didn't know all of his employees any more. He had a couple of hundred people in the various

SYNOPSIS

TERRY ARNOLD, a young Vermont newspaperman, has written a fairly successful novel. To gather material for a second book he has gone to the Argentine, her subject matter to be the wealthy playboy set of that Latin-American country.

Other characters are:
BROOKS KIMBERLY, owner of Ultimo Ventura, a race horse.
CORINNE ARTIGAS, Kimberly's fiancée, and
RAFF CORDOBA, architect and friend of Kimberly.

YESTERDAY, Terry witnesses a disagreement between Brooks Kimberly and Corinne and sees Brooks—and his China bull—win out.

CHAPTER TWELVE

TERRY LAY sunning himself languidly on the colored tile beside the pool.

The baroness was playing cards with Raff, reaching over to slap his hand whenever he attempted to quit.

"Do you see that beautiful creature by the pool?" he complained. "I want to make, as they say in her wonderful country, a flirtation."

"Play your ace and be quiet," ordered the baroness. "Men become more boring each season."

Jim, immaculate in black linen, her white hair glistening in the warm afternoon sun, embroidered with vigorous speed, she smiled at the baroness now. "I think Julia Artigas misses you, Rosie. He said when he called this morning you could come back to Buenos Aires and annoy him whenever you felt inclined."

"That won't be before the election," the baroness snorted. "My stars, how long is it yet?"

"A month."

"I'll die," mourned the baroness. "I'll perish of boredom in this lonely hole."

Terry laughed lazily. "I died a week ago. This is heaven!"

She rolled over and sunned her back. It was almost ten days ago she came, she marveled. Never had days been so full of pleasure, so relaxing, so entirely complete.

Jim was saying, "You are a satisfying guest, Terry."

Terry answered, "You're a more than satisfying hostess, Jim."

"Oh hush!" said the baroness.

Terry and Jim exchanged a friendly smile. Never, Terry marveled to herself, had she liked anyone more than this whole-hearted, frank Argentine matron. She had expected to be interviewed on her family, her background, her right to accept an invitation to the exclusive House of Kimberly. But Jim had made no personal inquiries when mentioning her own visits to New York. She had liked the country, she said with enthusiasm. Everybody was busy, some of them looked quite mischievous, but all of them looked happy.

Terry soon realized it was Jim's energetic spirit that dominated the estancia. She understood Brooks' love for the place now, and his sense of responsibility. Jim knew of every repair and change necessary in the vast mansion and stables, every problem in the lives of her many servants, and the condition of every gaucho family on the estancia.

Jim was pleased with Terry's big sister attitude toward her devoted maid, Angela, and when Terry spoke of Angela's brother, she took her along one morning on her horseback ride around to the houses of the gaucho families.

Terry was more than gratified at this chance to see the relation between mistress and gauchos. She herself prattled on and on with her college Spanish to the peon families, amusing both herself and the peons. And Jim was superb. There was only one other woman, Terry thought, who could have taken the same vital interest in every detail of their welfare.

Every day or so, between swimming, tennis, golf, pelota and watching Raff and Brooks practice polo with Sandy and the grooms and occasional guests, she rode back to see Angela's small brother, Pedro, a cherub of a child. She was living the life of a princess, settling down to gay, informal rounds of sports and relaxation of an estancia summer with a sense of fitting into it that astonished herself. Her writing, done secretly each night, strangely seemed the unreal activity!

She had been there 12 nights on the evening she went with Brooks, Corinne and Raff for a drive. It was not the first time the four of them had taken one of the estancia cars for a fast drive along the endless, moonlit ribbons of road. Tonight they were peacefully content to listen to a rhumba band over the radio and watch the moon rise toward the southern cross through the strange lovely blue of a pampas night. Brooks and Corinne had long ago made up their quarrel the night of China's illness. In fact, the next morning they had come up from the stables together to report to Senor Artigas and the politicians, who were returning to Buenos Aires, that China was out of danger.

And Terry had been charmed when, later that same day, they had come to her begging her forgiveness for their boorish behavior before a guest. Forgive them, Terry could have kissed them! They were her hero and heroine, if they only knew it. She wouldn't have missed that show of fire and ambition in the slumberous dark beauty of Corinne for anything. Now if they would only show her romance.

This was more difficult. For a betrothed pair, their conduct was exemplary. Though Brooks was always by Corinne's side in the household gatherings, they never went off alone together. Even in their evening rides Raff and Terry were always on the back seat. This, apparently, was the strict code of Argentine behavior.

Tonight Brooks stopped at a small bolche. Terry was interested in the estancia, he said, when Corinne demurred. She mustn't miss one of its most common features. They went in and were escorted past the tables of welcoming peons to special tables reserved for the owners and mayordomos of the estancia. They drank mate from a tube in the dimly lit, smoke filled place and listened to the peons' talk of crops and to a gaucho singer who accompanied his morose musical monologue with a guitar.

Terry was thrilled. A perfect setting for a chapter! "Except for the local talent," she laughed, "this could be a country store at home." Corinne's velvet gaze rested thoughtfully upon her. "Your family owned land then?" she murmured.

"My uncle owned a small farm in Vermont," Terry said. She gave the other girl a quick glance. She was about, she realized, to launch a series of questions on her family and her social status. In ten minutes, Terry knew with her own natural inclination toward truth, Corinne would have her history and occupation. As a defense gesture, Terry threw up a barrage of anecdotes of her childhood, escapades of school days. She was still chattering as they drove home.

Corinne broke in once. "Your training is so different," she murmured. "I can see now how a Norte American girl can travel about alone."

Terry worried as she chattered on desperately. What have I said? What kind of impression have I given them?

She found out sooner than she expected. Brooks and Corinne had gone into Brooks' study on their arrival at the house, to take a phone message that had come during their ride. Raff took Terry to the foot of the great winding staircase. As Terry, on the second step, turned to say goodnight, he suddenly gathered her into his arms and kissed her with rough passion.

For one instant Terry was too stunned to resist. Then, hurt and angry, she struggled free, and when Raff tried to hold her she struck him a stinging blow.

"Raff!"

At the voice, Terry's heart did a power dive. Over Raff's shoulder she saw Brooks, standing in the hall, pipe in hand. But though his curt command was for Raff, his eyes were on her, kind but inscrutable. She turned and fled up the stairs.

departments—machine, painting, drying, packing, etc. After awhile, though, he got to know Joe.

Joe joined the Union and did a good job at a lathe. War came. Joe was inducted in 1942. But it was OK. He could get his job back after the war.

He came out of the service in 1945 with a disability discharge. Nothing seriously wrong that would prevent him from going back to the lathe in Bill Manning's plant. So he went back. Joe's old lathe was still there, but it was being operated now by a man who had been working for Bill Manning long before Joe had started to work in 1940. Instead of rollers for toys, small wooden parts for special gun mounts were being made.

The boss of the woodworking section, following the terms of a memo of the Selective Service organization, wanted to put Joe back at his old spot, because the memo said all veterans who had permanent jobs before induction should be restored to those jobs regardless of the seniority of other workers. But CIO and AFL officials claim that would be establishing a super-seniority system. They contend Congress intended only that Joe should be given additional seniority for the time spent in the service—not that non-veteran workers with equal or greater seniority should be forced out to make way for Joe.

Therefore, if Manning insisted on putting Joe into that old job, the union might cause him plenty of trouble. If he didn't, Selective Service would get after him.

And that is the argument that is going on with no answer today. The Veterans of Foreign Wars organization got into the thing, but after months of private arguments and negotiations, no solution came out of the mixture. Brig. Gen. Frank Himes, as Administrator of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration, has tried to break this deadlock by naming a committee to try to dream up a practical plan. The National Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is officially included in as spokesman for ex-service men.

At a conference of the American Management Association, it is reported, employers were advised to set up veteran reemployment policies generally acceptable to the unions; these policies also to include established exceptions—so if Selective Service pushes into any individual case and claims the veteran's rights extend beyond these policies, then the exceptions can be used to keep Selective Service off the employer's neck.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

TOM: "It's mighty nice to receive a compliment like you've just given us, Judge. We do take our responsibilities very seriously and try to do the right thing with everybody. In spite of it, we get criticized now and then."

OLD JUDGE: "I know... you've got to take the bitter with the sweet in times like these. Speaking of criticism, and I mean really unfair criticism, reminds me of the spirit beverage business."

FRANK: "How is that, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Simply this... can you think of any other business in which the seller is responsible for what the buyer does with his merchandise? If a person eats too much cake and gets indigestion, the baker isn't blamed. Nor is the coffee merchant criticized if someone drinks too much coffee and can't sleep. But the seller of spirit beverages gets blamed plenty if one of his customers overindulges. Doesn't seem quite fair, does it, Tom?"

TOM: "Frankly, it doesn't, Judge. We've never looked at it that way before."

LOCAL MAN IN VETERAN CORPS ON 4 CAMPAIGNS

Pvt. Homer L. Miller Served In Algeria, Tunisia, Sicily and Italy

(Special to the Record-Herald)
WITH THE FIFTH ARMY.
Italy—Pvt. Homer L. Miller, son of Mrs. Margaret J. Miller, Washington C. H., Route 5, bomb disposal technician, is a member of the Second Corps Headquarters, veteran outfit that fought in Algeria, Tunisia, Sicily and Italy, and which played a key role on the Fifth Army front in the offensive which resulted in the unconditional surrender of all German forces in Italy.

The corps is credited with capture of Bologna, last German bastion in the Mediterranean theater to withstand Allied pressure for more than a few hours.

Known widely as a proving ground for generals, II Corps has been commanded successively by Gen. Mark W. Clark, Lieut. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, Gen. George S. Patton Jr., Gen. Omar N. Bradley and, the incumbent, Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes.

Through nearly three years overseas, II Corps has handled the cream of veteran field divisions, including the 9th and 1st Infantry through Tunisia and Sicily, the 3rd "Marne" and 45th "Thunderbird" through Sicily and Italy, and the 36th "Texas" Division in Italy, and the 34th "Red Bull" and 1st Armored through the North African and Italian campaigns. It broke the Gustav and Hitler lines with the 85th "Custer" and 88th "Blue Devil" divisions, later adding the 91st "Powder River" Division for the Gothic Line push.

The corps sailed July 1, 1942 for England. It went ashore near Oran, Northern Algeria, on North African D Day, November 8, 1942, and entered the Tunisian campaign as a part of the British First Army. Stopping the German 10th Panzer Division, II Corps took nearly 5,000 prisoners, went on to capture Hill 609 and trapped and gathered up another 42,000 prisoners on the coast. II Corps controlled 110,000 Allied troops in the Tunisian campaign in a sector 90 miles deep, manning a 140-mile front.

The corps invaded Sicily and fought across the middle of the island to Messina, making a major contribution to the final capitulation of Italy and bringing the corps total of enemy killed, wounded or captured to 110,000.

Entering the Italian campaign and the ranks of Fifth Army, II Corps took over the Venafro sector before Cassino and tactical command with 2,000 mules and regulated by three radio stations, to get food, water and ammunition up to the doughboys in the mountains.

The corps ripped the Gustav Line to shreds in May, 1944, and raced rapidly on through Formia, Itri and Fondi, planting the familiar "Follow the Blue to Speedy Two" signs along Highway 7 to the beaches around Anzio, where contact was made May 24 with the long-beleaguered troops of the beachhead force. (Blue and white are the colors of II Corps, and "speedy" is the corps telephone exchange name.)

Moving rapidly past Rome, II Corps followed the west coast northward as far as the Arno, reequipped men with 12,000 packboards for human portage of vital equipment in mountain terrain and fought on up into the upper Apennine Mountains, through the Gothic Line and out into the Po Valley, where its troops played a decisive role in the recent ultimate, unconditional surrender of Von Vietinghoff's armies.

88 Guests Assembled at Country Club on Thursday For Luncheon-Bridge Affair

Mrs. W. L. Stinson, Mrs. C. L. Snyder and Mrs. Alice Renick Combine Hostess Talents for Largely Attended Affair at Country Club

An abundant wealth of gorgeously colored blossoms in various artistic arrangements bedecked the Country Club on Thursday afternoon when Mrs. W. L. Stinson, Mrs. C. L. Snyder and Mrs. Alice Renick combined hostess talents to entertain twenty-two tables of guests with a luncheon-bridge, which proved to be one of the most successful and largely attended affairs of the current social season.

The beautiful floral background was a fitting setting for the brilliant affair which was hostessed by three of the city's most capable hostesses. The many fragrant bouquets were seen in great profusion about the spacious club lounge, and their fragrance added a touch of exotic spring beauty to the affair.

Covers for eighty-eight guests were laid at various tables in the club house, each table being centered with watergardens of various colored flowers of great variety. As the trio of hostesses received their guests amid a floral bower, the bevy of smartly-dressed women were invited to find their places at the luncheon tables.

Viands, both tempting and appetizing to the eye, were served in two courses at the tables which were the scene of much gaiety and informal chatting over the courses of delectable foods.

Out-of-town women invited here for the gala affair were Mrs. Maude Halbrook, Mrs. Mayme Paxton, Mrs. John Westwater, Mrs. Ida Houston, all of South Charleston; Mrs. Kenneth Phleger and Mrs. Austin Wildman, of Springfield and Miss Virginia Thompson of Columbus.

Contract bridge at the card tables was the entertainment provided by the hostesses for the pleasure of their guests who greatly enjoyed the delightful afternoon of especially keen competition.

As the affair drew to its close, the guests reluctantly withdrew from the tables and then the hostesses awarded the lovely prizes to the bridge winners. They were Mrs. Robert Terhune, Mrs. McKinley Kirk, Mrs. J. J. Kelley and Mrs. Laura Julian.

Everyone expressed their enthusiastic appreciation to the trio of hostesses for the many pleasures so kindly placed at their disposal during the course of the affair.

FURTHER EXPANSION OF CITY BUSINESS AREA LOOMS

GARAGES AND OTHER FIRMS ON THE MOVE

Expansion Into Residential Areas Seen as Coming In Near Future

For years certain boundaries of the uptown or business district of Washington C. H. have almost walled in expansion, but there are indications that, as the city grows and the business district must expand accordingly, some of the bounds will be broken in the not distant future.

Demand for business rooms has been growing and will continue to grow.

Present indications are that within another year or two, most of the larger garage establishments will be out of the up-town area. The tendency seems to be moving west of Paint Creek in the West Court, Clinton, Leesburg and Highland Avenue areas.

In addition to the garages and service stations already located west of Paint Creek, reports indicate that three other large garage and implement concerns will build within a few squares of each other.

Carroll Halliday sometime ago purchased the Daugherty tract at the intersection of Leesburg and Clinton Avenues. He has not announced definite building plans.

Robert Merriweather, whose garage and sales rooms on Market Street were wiped out in the memorable fire Oct. 15, 1944, may build on his premises on Clinton Avenue, although plans are still more or less indefinite.

Floyd Drummond recently purchased a tract of land suitable for building purposes, on Highland Avenue, part of the Shoop property, but has not announced plans.

This indicates a pronounced trend of part of the business toward the area west of Paint Creek and a way from the regular business district.

Another break into the residential district adjacent to the closely built up area comes with the location of the new Bell Telephone building, which will house business offices of the company as well as the mechanical equipment, on exchange, on North North Street, south of Grace Methodist Church.

Purchase by the Fayette Co. Farm Bureau Co-Op. of the large tract of ground from the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., south of the Pennsylvania Railroad, extending from Main to Fayette Streets, for location of office building and storage facilities, facing Main Street, is another expansion of the business area that is important, and marks another move southward across the railroad.

Some of the super-markets have been seeking suitable building locations just outside of the present closely built up area, where parking facilities can be arranged to better advantage, reports indicate.

A ring of service stations about part of the up-town area has been one thing that has prevented establishment of additional business blocks beyond the old bounds.

Within the next few years some pronounced expansions may be made in the present confines of the business area, and expansions are expected to be along the wider streets, as the residential area is pushed back to make room for a growing business heart of the city, observers declare.

The new County Hospital, if it goes through, will be one of numerous new building projects

"Without Love" at Fayette Theatre, Sunday, Monday, Tues., June 10-12. The Professor (Felix Bressart) is slightly shocked to learn that Spencer Tracey and Katharine Hepburn are spending their honeymoon working on a new-fangled oxygen mask. With a Buckeye In Congress...

By CLARENCE J. BROWN
Member of Congress, 7th Ohio District

Underneath the surface present international affairs are in such a "touchy" state as to be causing considerable concern. An effort is being made to conclude the San Francisco Conference at as early a date as possible—probably within two weeks. At the moment there are several international situations which may suddenly develop into serious threats to the whole plan for establishing a new world order to preserve peace.

According to an announcement by OPA, there will be eight per cent less beef, ten per cent less pork, and twenty per cent less lamb available for civilian consumption in June than in May. Ration point values on several types of meat and canned vegetables have been increased.

Housewives, who are already finding it almost impossible to purchase meat for the family table, will find the situation even more difficult in the next two or three months. In the meantime black markets flourish. According to the House Food Investigating Committee, headed by Representative Clinton P. Anderson who is soon to become the new Secretary of Agriculture and War Food Administrator, as high as ninety per cent of the meat and poultry consumed in New York is sold through the black market, at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1.25 per pound. Certainly black market prices do not prevent inflation.

If Senator Wagner, Democrat of New York and Chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, is right, and has his way, prices will be controlled and food rationing will be continued until at least 1950, and perhaps even longer. The Senate Banking Committee has approved legislation to continue the Price Control Act and the Office of Price Administration for another year, without amendment or change, from the time the present law expires June 30th. A hard fight will be put up by those in the community, and the new Theater building on East Court Street is also part of the big building program looming.

One man in touch with the situation declares that as soon as building materials are available, at least 100 new homes will be built in Washington C. H. as soon as possible.

whether Members of the House shall be reimbursed, up to as much as $208.00 per month, for long distance telephone calls, printing, travel and other expenditures actually made by them, in behalf of the Government, in carrying on their official duties. For many years Members of the Senate have had such expenses taken care of out of a contingent fund which averages $350.00 per month for each Senator, but the Representatives have been paying their expenses out of their own pockets. Senators also receive an average of twice as much clerk hire as allotted House Members. Also many of the smaller States they represent have far less population than the larger Congressional districts.

More than 3500 different legislative bills have been introduced in the present Congress on matters pertaining to war veterans and their dependents. Much of this legislation is similar in nature. Hearings have been scheduled on a number of the more important of these bills, for Members of Congress, as well as the nation as a whole, are desirous of taking every possible action to help meet the needs of those who have fought their country's battles.

The Japs are fighting desperately, and every damaged American vessel must be repaired and sent back into action as quickly as possible. If you believe you can qualify for work in a shipyard, contact your closest U. S. Employment Office. If you cannot—then buy another War Bond.

While the Administration won its fight in the House to extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, and to amend it so as to permit an additional fifty per cent reduction in tariff schedules, the measure still faces a hard battle in the Senate. Many observers believe the Senate may refuse to approve the section of the bill which would permit a further cut of fifty per cent in tariffs—or an over-all reduction of seventy-five per cent. Tariffs mean but little under the present war economy, when the United States is buying and importing most any thing any foreign country has for sale, and is exporting and giving away almost everything this nation can produce.

INDUSTRY DEFERRED MEN TO BE DRAFTED

WASHINGTON, June 8—(P)—Sixty thousand currently "irreplaceable" industrial workers 26 through 29 stand to lose their draft deferments by fall, government officials estimated today.

Munitions cutbacks and diminished urgency of other war supporting activities will reduce by at least 17 percent the 350,000 key men of that age now occupationally deferred, said these officials. They are familiar with a preliminary manpower survey, but asked that their names be withheld.

The survey is being made by the government's inter-agency deferment committee in line with selective service's new policy of meeting calls from the ranks of men under 30.

MONTEREY PARK, Calif., June 8—(P)—Residents of this Los Angeles suburb were relaxing today after a realistic Japanese scare.

Derby Likely To Be Run in Mud By Field of 14 Colts, One Filly

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 8.—(AP)—The breath-taking two minute drama of the 11st Kentucky Derby unfolds Saturday afternoon with the prospect of the first muddy track since 1929 when little Clyde Van Dusen wallowed to victory through splashing mud and water.

A terrific rain swept Churchill Downs yesterday, stopping shortly after noon. It quickly turned the racing strip into a sloppy, brown-colored mess, fetlock deep. Unless more rain falls today, or tonight, the track undoubtedly will drain off, making it slow if not muddy. It has excellent drying qualities.

However, more rain is predicted today with the result that the original starting field of eighteen may be reduced to fourteen because of track conditions.

Burning Dream, carrying the hopes of a fifth Derby victory for the 55-year-old Col. E. R. Bradley of Lexington, Ky., will not start if track conditions are unfavorable. Two of the three Canadian nominees—Fair Jester and Kendworth lad, definitely will not go if the track is off. Another doubtful starter is Jacobo, entry of Andrew Wright, Jersey City, N. J. Jacobo received a leg cut in his last workout before leaving New York.

This fourth war-time Derby, delayed more than a month because of the ban on racing, will find an apparently certain field of 14 more or less sprightly three year olds struggling to the last mile and a quarter of Churchill Downs soil, come a fast track or mud, to present a reasonable facsimile of Whirlaway's 201 2-5 record for the event. Each will carry 126 pounds, with the exception of the only filly in the race, Miswheat, which will have an allowance of five pounds.

The public has installed three horses as choices—Hoop Jr., entry of F. W. Hooper, Jacksonville, Fla.; Col. C. V. Whitney's

Jeep and Pot O'Luck, entry of Warren Wright's Calumet Farm. The experts feel kindly toward Christiana Stable's Alexis on the basis of his brilliant mile and a quarter workout in 2:05 3-5 before shipping to Louisville and his performance against Hoop Jr. in the wood. Hoop defeated him by two and a half lengths but he was closing fast.

The race may develop into a personal riding duel between Eddie Arcaro and 36-year-old Georgia Woolf, called the "ice man" of the turf. Woolf has ridden in eight derbies, dating back to 1932, but he's never been closer than second. He will have the mount of Charles Howard's Sea Swallow.

Arcaro, rated as America's No. 1 money rider, rode Lawrin to victory in 1938; Whirlaway in 1941 and finished third on Stir Up last year. He'll be aboard Hoop Jr.

A crowd estimated at upwards of 60,000 is expected.

THREE GAMES ALL SET FOR NEXT SUNDAY IN NEW TRI-COUNTY LOOP

Tri-County Baseball League games coming up this Sunday are:

Eagles at Good Hope
Sabina at Jeffersonville
Milledgeville at Greenfield.

Good Hope's baseball fans today are not forgetting the good game their team put up against the Eagles in a pre-season tilt as they look forward with justifiable hope for their first victory in the new Tri-County League when they meet them again on the Good Hope lot next Sunday afternoon.

Bob Herdman, manager of the Good Hope team, has predicted that Lefty Wackman "won't go the route" for the Eagles when he faces the Good Hope batters. Allen Dumford, Eagle boss, is confident his team will come back with a shutout. It will be the first game for the Good Hope boys since Bob Rodgers went in as their secretary-treasurer.

Jeffersonville fans will get their first glimpse of their ball team—if the school board gives them permission to use the field—Sunday when it is slated to tangle with the Sabina outfit. Guy Taylor, the Sabina boss, said he had his fingers crossed as plans for the visit were completed with confidence of victory and Lawrence Smith sent down word that he is "praying for a green light."

The league season's opener against the Eagles had to be hurriedly transferred to Wilson Field here when the school officials at Jeffersonville halted the game right at the start. A member of the board explained that the team's representatives had not asked the board's permission to use the field or given assurance that it would be taken care of if it was used.

A co-manager, E. Charles Moore, described as a "100 percent baseball booster," has been named by Manager Johnnie Anderson as the Milledgeville team made ready for its fourth league tilt. Word has come back to Bob Bailey, the league secretary and publicist, that the Greenfields "have the antidote" for Milledgeville's ambitions.

The Eagles remain as the only undefeated team in the loop and at the top of the standing. Good Hope has the only team that has not yet tasted victory, but the boys have come so close they could smell it. The standing after three games was:

The Wilson Hardware team in the senior league is the only one in that loop which has yet to be defeated.

Flynn of the Hoff Market team has the highest batting average of them all—a juicy .750. Wilt of Wilson's Hardware and Cash of Company D are right behind him with .666 each.

Next week's schedule is: Monday, Methodists vs. Korn Insurance at 7 P. M. and American Legion vs. Sheidler Insurance at 8:30 P. M.; Tuesday, Presbyterian vs. Moore's Auto at 7 P. Reds, Red Sox Now Pressing Comebacks

By Joe Cronin's Boston Red Sox and Bill McKechnie's Cincinnati Reds today qualify as the comeback kids by making the first division of their respective leagues after a rocky start.

Boston rocketed into the select circle by copying 13 of 18 games during an extended Fenway Park stand and Cincy crept out of the dark regions with 11 wins in their last 12 starts.

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP)—Rally today continued to pilot the stock market on its selective recovery excursion. The pace quickened after the start, aided by activity in low-quoted sprouts, although there were intermittent slowdowns. Gains of fractions to 2 or more points predominated near the fourth hour.

GEN. BRADLEY NAMED NEW ADMINISTRATOR OF VETERANS' AFFAIRS

Administration will be modernized. On Capitol Hill, congressional investigators went ahead with their probe into V.A.

Hines resigned also as director of Veterans' Retraining and Re-employment, but Mr. Truman said Bradley would not take over that work. That will be handled in another way, the President added without elaborating.

—Spying— On Sports

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP)—National League Proxy Ford Frick and drummer Ted Patterson, who have been making a survey of the sandlot baseball situation, aren't worried about the big cities. "There's plenty of baseball played in the cities and suburban areas; where the game has lost is in the small towns and old 'county' teams," Frick explains. "The difference seems to be that there's more dough in the densely populated areas to provide facilities and equipment through recreation and playground programs and where players are scarce in the country, organizers are even scarcer."

Frick, who says he's not interested so much in developing big league players as in getting kids to play baseball, figures that corrective measures may lead to some realignment in the lower minor leagues so as to restore home-town rivalries with home-town players.

Sanford, veteran Covington, Ky., turfman, will serve as a steward at the 19-day meeting of running races opening at Hamilton, Ohio, Saturday, June 23. He has been associated with the sport for years and a number of seasons ago became an official. Sanford ranks at the top of the list among mid-western officials, due mainly to his thorough knowledge of the game.

Reds Climb By Beating Pirates, 7-3

CINCINNATI, June 8.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, back in the first division for the first time since the start of the season, begin a defense of that position today in the opener for a four-game series with the Chicago Cubs.

Deacon McKechnie has Elmer Riddle, who joined the club today after being on the sidelines last year with a sore arm, as his starting pitcher, if Riddle is ready to work. Opposing him is Henry Wyse. Riddle won 21 games in 1943 but was a starter in only four last year, two of which he won.

The Reds moved into the first division by the margin of one point yesterday as they defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3 to take the four game series three games to one. The victory was their eleventh in the last 12 starts.

Aided by five Pittsburgh errors, three of them in the third inning, Joe Bowman triumphed for Cincinnati, although the Pirates got to him for 11 hits.

The Reds scored three runs in the third on the combination of errors by Lee Handley, Bill Salkeld and Frank Gustine, and a double by Frank McCormick after Eddie Miller had singled. With their lead never threatened, the Reds added another run in the seventh.

RED BIRDS LOSE, 3-1

(By the Associated Press)

George Davis, Columbus second baseman, didn't get a hit in six times at bat in 15 innings against Owen Scheetz of Milwaukee last night—the first time he failed to register at least one blow in the last 27 games.

The Red Birds got 10 hits off Scheetz in the overtime struggle but the 1944 champion Brewers got two of their 11 blows to break the 1-1 deadlock with a pair of runs in the 15th inning to win 3 to 1.

League-leading Indianapolis had its four game winning streak snapped by St. Paul 3-1 in a twilight game, but the Indians took the nightcap, 5-3, to stay a game and a half ahead of idle Louisville. The Colonels' game with Minneapolis was rained out.

In other games last night, fourth-place Toledo downed sixth place Kansas City 4-3 in the opener, while the Blues won a 6-4 verdict in the second game.

Mexico has 28 states, two territories and the federal district (Mexico City and 11 surrounding villages).
